Though COVID-19 mitigation measures have interrupted most of the regularly scheduled events, SAAPM is a pivotal time for SHARP personnel, local rape crisis centers and other service providers to show their support for survivors, educate about prevention and consent, and raise visibility about resources and services within their community. Therefore, we must continue to advocate.

'Together, we can work to further reduce, with the goal to eliminate, sexual assault from the armed forces. Our military is the most trusted institution in America and our Service members have signed a blank check to the American people, payable with their lives. This crime must not threaten those who have volunteered to serve.'
